"There's a fracture right through the length of the glass, but I don't know how it came there. I didn't drop it or strike it against anything. Seven years! Ain't it just awful?"

"Seven grandmothers!" exclaimed the other girl. "That isn't a fracture. It's nothing but a streak of moist air. Look, I can wipe it off with my handkerchief!"

"So it is. Ob, you dear thing! Run right after Sue and bring her back. Tell her the glass wasn't broken and we haven't quarreled after all! And the seven years are up already, and, oh, ain't I just thankful''—Detroit Free

KENTUCKY HUMOR.

Some Anecdates of Humphrey Marshall, Edward J. McDermott, in an article

intitled "Fan on the Stump" in The Century, relates the following: Just before the war Humphrey Marhall was a great debater in congress.

During the war he was a Confederate general. He was very large and stout a veritable Falstaff. At the breaking out of the war he wrote to an officer of the north and warned him not to invade the sacred soil of Kentucky, for if he did he would have to pass over the dead body of Humphrey Marshall. The northern officer replied: "Dear general, we won't pass over your dead body. We prefer to tunnel through."

After the war the general had a good practice, but he was extravagant and often in need of money: Once he was degged by a collector who had been put off dozens of times. At last the collector said: "General, you have said to me week. Come next.' Now, I can't afford to be coming here all the time. You must fix the day. When will you be able to pay me?" "D-n it, sir," said the general, ''do you think I am a prophet?' When the general was running for congress against Mr. Blank, after the war, he tried to draw out Mr. Blank's exact opinions by a close debate on the stump. In such an intellectual conflict few men could compete with Humphrey Marshall. Mr. Blank parried and fenced as well as he could. Finally Marshall and impressive manner: Mr. Blank down and make him give me a fair statement of his opinions and principles, but he flits about so nimbly that it is impossible to follow him in an argument. In dodging a debate he reminds me of a bobolink flitting along a zigzag worm fence, hopping or flying, first on one side of the fence and then on the other, until the mind is bewildered, and it is impossible to tell on which side he is at any moment."

Father Ducey.

There are few clergymen or priests in this city who have the wide acquaintance and influence of Father Ducey of St. Leo's Roman Catholic church. Father Ducey's influence is by no means limited to persons of his own faith. A friend recently told me a story illustrating the priest's methods. According to my friend, Father Ducey entered Delmonico's cafe one night not long ago and walking up to a party of wealthy gentlemen seated at one of the tables said: "I have just come from a visit to a family, one member of which is at the point of death. The family is destitute. I want $100 from you gentlenen." In a moment each member of the party had handed the priest a bank note, and he walked out with the $100, which he took, although it was almost midnight, directly to the afflicted family. Not one of the men who contributed the money was a Catholic. - New NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND—the bad habits and early vices of young men and their disastrous consequences. Young men and old men, those who suffer from nervous debility and exhaustion, the wasting away of the vital strength and power from hidden drains or. intemperate habits can readily find relief for body and mind by writing the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y. They employ a full staff of physicians and Specialists, who treat at a distance by correspondence or at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, all this class of diseases. Those who suffer from low spirits, irritable temper, a "broken-down" nervous system, and such distressing symptoms as backache, dizziness, shooting pains in head or chest and indigestion, sexual excesses or abuses, all the result of exhausting diseases or drains upon the system,—will find a permaneut cure after taking the special prescriptions sent them from the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute. This association of medical men have prepared a book written in plain but chaste language, treating of the nature, symptoms and curability, by home treatment, of such diseases. The World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., will, on receipt of this notice, with 10 cents (in stamps for postage) mail, sealed in plain envelope, a copy of this useful book. It should be read by every young man, parent and guardian in the land.

She was shopping on State street one bright midsummer morning when a crowd at Washington street at true ed her attention. Being carious, she muse t gated that crowd. She found in the center thereof a small boy sobbig bitterly under the guardianship of two big policenien. To her horror, the recognized in the small boy her consin a little son.

The little fellow had slipped and broken or sprained his ankle. He knew where he lived, but he could not ge there The policemen had sent for the pattel wagen, the only vehicle at their command, for the little sufferer.

The child was in perfect agony at the pro-ject of boing carried off in a patrol wagon by two policemen. The society gal interfered. She told the policemen this was her nephew. She told them where he hved. The address corresponded to that which the little fellow had Limself given them.

"I'll get a cab and take him home," and the society girl, a reasonable auggestion enough, surely, but the police men would not bear to that. They had sent for the patrol wagon, and some one must have a ride in it. It was not to be take him where you say be lives, lady, but he must go with us."

The patrol wagon came. The child was almost convulsed with terror. He implored the society girl not to let the policemen take him. The policemen were obdurate. Finally the society girl gave up. "Well," she said, "if he must go home in a patrol wagon, I'll go home in it too." So they lifted the small boy in, and the society girl climbed in after him, and the policemen mounted guard on each side,

And thus it happened the few society people who were by chance shopping on that midsummer morning instead of enjoying the country breezes of the summcı cottages were horrified at seeing a daughter of one of their first families rolling swiftly by in a patrol wagen spectable looking girl" could have done that the police were taking her away. For more than 20 years old Barney had been baunted with the idea that be was on the verge of the grave. Ev ery evening he declared that he would never again see the sun rise. He constantly brooded over his queer hallner. AT nation and never allowed himself to go to sleep without being carefully prepared for death and burial. Every night he robed himself in his grave clothes and solemnly laid down in his coffin and passed the night firmly believing and probably hoping that for him the day would never dawn again. Finally death came; but, grim and sly as he was, he did not find old Barney unpiepared. The coffin in which this queer old character had so often awakened disappointed was of his own make and was said to have been a curiosity in itself, being literally covered with all kinds, patterns and sizes of allegorical carving.-St. Louis Republic.

Rats In the Thames.

A strange sight was seen in London at the great fire in the grain warehouses near Blackfriars' bridge As the build ings, which were on the water's edge, were burning a black mass was seen in the river floating from the Surrey to the Middlesex side. It was composed of thousands of rats, cut off from escape on the land side. About 10,000 of them succeeded in crossing the river, but were then unable to get up the smooth side of the Thames embankment and were carried down stream and drowned

STOPPING RUNAWAYS The Central Park Police Have a System

Byery mounted puliceman connected with the Central park, equad swears by his horse. No piler animal, in his opinion, is quite as good, sound or well trained for the offtimes difficult work which they are called upon to perform.

This pride in their horses has led to a friendly spirit of rivalry between the street, about two weeks ago. men, which is undoubtedly the cause of the excellence of the department. _The stopping of a runaway in the drives or bridle paths is by no means an easy undettaking. The comparatively few serious accidents resulting from runaways, which during the greater portion of the year average more than 50 a month. speak well for the skill and daring of the mounted squad. Sergeant Egan, who has command of the squad, declares that any one of his men can give "p's" and "q's" to any cowboy that ever straddled a horse. "We have had 'cow punchers' in our ranks," said the sergeant, "who could pick up a handkerchief from the ground while riding at breakneck speed, or throw a lasso to perfection, but when it came to taking their lives in their hands in stopping a runaway they were 'not in it' with some of our New York boys who never mounted a horse until they joined the squad. I'll warrant that any of my men will catch any runaway that ever started in the park. Would you like to see our system of stopping

Baldwin was called in and the ser geant gave orders to have his horse saddled. When all was in readiness, the two men rede down the bridle path to give an illustration of the system which all the men have practiced and studied until they now have it down to perfection. Sergeant Egan halted and Baldwin, on his horse Harry, went down the path to get a good start. In a moment he came flying toward the sergeant on a dead gallop. Egan's horse pricked up his ears, already scenting the work cut out for it. As Baldwin came nearer Egan's superb animal began to move with gradually increasing speed until the supposed runaway was alongside, and then it ran neck and neck with Baldwin's horse.

Reaching out, the sergeant grasped the bridle of Baldwin's horse, and his from us," said the sergeant, "as our horses understand their business as well as the men. They never allow a runaway to get past them. A stern chase is often a long chase. Under the regu lations riders and drivers are allowed to move only at a certain speed within the park. A ronaway of course always exceeds this pace, and the policeman's horse detects the rapid patter of hoofs

Lincoln's Modest Fee.

M. D. Hardin, one of the oldest Illinois lawvers, tells of an instance where Mr. Lincoln was retained to assist two other lawyers in the conduct of a case of the greatest importance. "I will not say now what the case was," said Mr. Hardin, "but it was one of the greatest moment to the state and of importance to the nation. The decision arrived at grows more stupendous in its results every day. Even at the time of its settlement those connected with it knew it meant a great deal, and the two men who had been his colleagues consulted together after the trial as to the amount of the fee to be charged. They decided that $5,000 was the least they could take and concluded to send their bill for that amount. But they waited for that amount. But they waited for the counter.

Mr. Theorie and laid the case before Mr. Lancoln and laid the case before him. They asked him what he thought they ought to charge. He pondered over the matter for a time and finally said he thought his share ought to be about $50. That was, he thought, pretty good pay, considering that he had only given a little over a day to the case."—Chicago Times-Herald.
